The Relapse

Col. Kelly, the Democratic candidate for Governor, seems to be trying earnestly to amend his manners. He does not now indulge in profane and blasphemous language in every speech, as he did in the early part of the canvass, but only rails and curses when in a moment of exasperation, he entirely forgets himself and can no longer bridle his tongue. At Oregon City on Tuesday last, he was compelled to acknowledge publicly, that he had been guilty of the sin of profanity in his last speech there. He was forced also to confess that he had denied the accusation elsewhere, thus not only admitting that he had violated the second commandment, but that he was addicted to another vice which, as the old proverb tells us, is always coupled with swearing and cursing. Col. Kelly, however, humbly, and with much contrition, apologized to his audience at Oregon City for having blasphemed in the course of his former speech there. He said that the oaths he uttered escaped him unintentionally—that he was not a religious man, but, of course, felt that he should be; that no doubt it was far better not to use profane language, even in a pitch of excitement. The audience was much moved by there evidences of Kelly's contrition and repentance, and was quite willing to forgive him. But at the close of the debate between himself and Mr. Woods, there was an incident in Kelly's conduct which was a trifle discouraging to those who had formed such high hopes of his complete and permanent reformation. Three cheers having been proposed for Mr. Woods, they were given with a will, and the room rang with applause. Three cheers were then proposed for Col. Kelly, to which five voices feebly responded, accompanied by loud groans from one or two persons in the vicinity of the door. These groans were more than Col. Kelly, with all his placidity of temper, and with all his good resolutions, could endure. Notwithstanding he had been so sincerely repentant but a few minutes before, he now became highly enraged, and shaking his clenched fist in the direction of the offender, bawled out: "You're a coward, and I can whip you, G—d d—n you!" 'Tis said that after this burst of profanity, the pious people of Oregon City were greatly dejected, fearing that there had been but very little improvement in Kelly's moral nature, after all. When the Democratic aspirant for gubernatorial honors left their town, his partizans were probably in a very proper mood to seek consolation in reading Young's poem, "The Relapse."

A DISSOLUTIONIST STILL.—The subjoined is from the Herald of yesterday:

We believed that if Breckinridge, Douglas or Bell was elected the Union was safe, unless New England seceded and joined Canada, and with that fact we should have been content, knowing that we would thus have been ridden, etc.

This sounds very much like what the Herald editor wrote in 1861.

We hello to the West will insist on separation from the East. We for one do not wish to be ridden to the East.

Both of the above extracts contains sentiments which in a loyal community are called secession doctrines.

Words are notoriously cheap. The latest illustration of this truism is furnished by the Democrats of Pennsylvania. In their late State Convention they made a formal tender of "lasting gratitude" to the soldiers of the Union. What, and how much, they mean thereby can be inferred from the coarse, ribald and indecent manner in which most of the Democratic journals are now dealing with Gen Geary.—Pittsburg Gazette.

Democracy in Pennsylvania and Oregon is the same thing this year. In both States they make a tender of their "lasting gratitude" to the soldiers, and in both they revile every soldier who comes within range of their foul batteries of vituperation.

Diddler J. O'Meara said the other night that he had been abused and called a "pig." Well, now, Diddler, you ought not to complain of being called by so truthfully descriptive a name; but if you prefer it, we won't call you anything but "puppy." If you will let us know when you are "pig" and when "puppy" we think we can hit you on the spot every time.

If Mr Fay believed in the right of secession when it was a live issue, he is certainly a Union man now.—Herald

If the devil believed in sin when it was a live issue—that is to say when he sought to usurp the throne of the Almighty—he is certainly a pious personage now. So much for the Herald's secession logic. Will it try again?

"If a nigger is made socially and politically equal to a white man, how can you refuse him a white wife?" screamed O'Meara in his speech on Tuesday night. We had supposed that it would be necessary for the negro to obtain the white woman's consent before marrying her. O'Meara and the Democracy, it seems, think differently.

We never did believe in or advocate the right of secession.—Oregon Herald, May 16th, 1861.

Why not let them (the Southern States) go out peaceably? Why not have an equitable and just partition and separate amicably?—Herald editor in April, 1861.

From the above, it will appear conclusively, that "we never did believe in or advocate the right of secession."

If you hesitate; if you falter; if you fail, the future will indeed be dreary; nought will be left you but the severe and arduous glory of civil suffering.—Index

Not even a post office—it will be dreary. And a "nigger" can sue you for the debt you may owe him.

"Do we want our sisters and daughters to marry niggers?" shriek the Democrats indignantly. We ask by way of reply: Do Democrats themselves want to marry negro women? We venture to say that white women will not become fascinated with black men sooner than white men become fascinated with black women.

The Louisville Journal says that the President's "reconstruction policy is what the South desires and what the Northern Democracy desires." In an equal number of words it would be impossible to tell more. Loyal men, you have contended against rebels in the field and intended traitors at home, what do you think of it?

The Statesman of the 7th inst., warmly approves the plan of reconstruction which was lately presented to Congress by the Committee of Fifteen, and exhorts every Union man "to work to elect our whole ticket with a view of having the next Legislature ratify this new plan."

We have been remonstrated with for not giving a detailed account of O'Meara's performance here the other evening. Are we expected to write a long article describing every pig or monkey show that visits the city?

The Oregon Statesman is battling nobly for the Union party, and is doing the cause an inestimable service. It pours it into the ramp of the Copperheads with blows that tell for the righteous cause of a loyal party.

A SENSIBLE TENNESSEAN.—One Ross, formerly a wealthy slave and land owner of Tennessee, and owner of the premises occupied by the Freedmen's Court in Nashville, has notified General Fisk of his intention to build school houses on his large plantation in Arkansas, for colored people, and requests that he may be supplied with teachers by the Freedmen's Bureau.

O'MEARA AND THE WORKING MAN.—That diddler and clean-shirted bummer, O'Meara, makes frequent appeals to the working men to support the Democratic ticket, because, as he says, the Democratic party is the poor man's friend. This, of course is the shallowest kind of demagogueism. That party which stood against our glorious old flag, against the Union, and against the perpetuity of the best Government for the poor man and the working man, is not the friend of any man except the aristocrat, the driver of the "poor whites" and slaves, and the Bloody-handed traitor.

O'Meara's respect for the working man, in particular, has been evidenced on many an occasion, when he has shown his contempt for the garb of the hardy son of toil, by sneers and gibes; by diddling and swindling his "poor man" compositors and *po

The Dreadful "Abolition Tariff"

In his speech here on Wednesday, Col Kelly took occasion to reiterate the Democratic idea of anti-tariff. The usual gallimatia about "the West being impoverished for the sake of the pampered money lords and soulless manufacturers of the East," was repeated with Democratic unction. The "Abolition Tariff" has of late been made a theme of denunciation by all the Copperhead papers of Oregon. Until the election drew near they never thought of raising their doleful cries against the national protective system; but thinking now, by their opposition of the tariff, to manufacture some capital for a bankrupt cause, they revive the obsolete story of the wrongs which the West is compelled to submit to at the hands of the East, and call for the repeal of "the unjust and oppressive Abolition tariff laws." Now the tariff of which they complain is a positive necessity to the national existence—made necessary by such politicians as Col. Kelly, who encouraged the South into rebellion, and stimulated the rebels in their resistance to the laws. Had it not been for the conduct of the rebel friends of Col. Kelly, we should have had no debt to burden us; and had it not been for Col. Kelly himself and his political friends at the North, the rebellion would have been crushed in the first year of its existence, saving the Government twenty-five hundred millions of dollars. To pay the interest on this debt, which was thrown upon the country by the conduct of the Democracy, this "Abolition tariff" which Col. Kelly denounces, is an absolute necessity. Besides, how long do these Democratic wiseacres suppose the woolen mills of Oregon, as well as the cotton spindles of the East, could run without this system of protection? Labor here is worth six times what it is in England; abolish the tariff, and our markets will know Oregon fabrics no more. All the various industries that depend upon, and are supported by these manufactories, will cease at once. The farmer will have no home market, for manufacturers driven from their usual employment will be thrown upon the soil for a livelihood; labor can obtain no remuneration, and tradesmen will have no market for their wares. There will be no money in circulation, and therefore nothing to buy with, even at the cheaper rates that would then prevail. If the present tariff should unwisely be abolished as the Democratic party desire, in less than two years the country would be compelled, as the only resource to avoid utter ruin, to re-enact laws which should protect American interests against foreign competition.

MAIL MATTERS.—We learn that Postal Agent Brooks has made the following recommendations for the improvement of mail facilities:

The establishment of a post office at Baker City, Oregon, and the appointment of Mrs. Caroline A. Calbreath as postmistress for the same.

That the postoffice at Walla Walla be designated as a separating office.

The extension of mail service from Florence to Washington, (Warren's Diggings), in Idaho Territory.

Mr. Brooks has taken the necessary steps to have the through mail between Portland and Boise City, carried in pouches with brass locks, so as to prevent the through mail from being overhauled at the wayside offices. At present such overhauling is a fruitful source of the detentions and irregularities of which so much complaint is justly made.

He recommends to the Postmaster General that Hill Beachy, who has carried the mail from Boise City to Ruby City regularly since the 1st of January last, without compensation, receive an equitable remuneration for the service; and also that Greathouse & Co., who performed a similar service between Boise City and Placerville, previous to July, 1865, be properly compensated. Speaking of this Company and mail facilities, the Idaho Statesman states that they are now carrying a daily mail from Boise City, by Idaho City, Centerville and Placerville to Placerville, instead of tri-weekly according to their contract. The arrangement was recently effected by Mr. Brooks, and this extra service, which is worth, according to contract rates, at least $7,000 per annum, will be performed by the Company without increase or extra compensation.

Mr. B. has information that Senator Williams has introduced a bill to establish a mail route from Oregon City, via Cuttings, Silverton and Sublimity to Lebanon. This bill, which will undoubtedly pass, will supply a vast tract of thickly settled country with mail facilities of which it has hitherto been destitute.

OATH-BOUND DENIAL.—The Herald, yesterday, pronounced the oath, published in the ONNONIAN of the day previous as the one administered to initiate into the treasonable, law-defying, Democratic "Old Guard" organization of Oregon, "a forgery." Will the Herald please publish the genuine oath? One who thus confidently denies the identity of the thing, ought to know.

We, however, expected the Herald man to pronounce the oath a forgery—as a faithful member of the order, he could not do otherwise, any more than Jim. O'Meara could take the oath of allegiance to the United States Government without committing perjury. The Herald man, just as we expected, denied ever having been a member of any secret political society—but he confidently knows, he says, that the oath we published is a forgery; that it is not the oath used by the "Old Guard," "Sons of Freedom," "Sons of Liberty," or "The Jones Family," or by "Parson Jones"! We advise our neighbor to go slow or we may feel compelled to convict him of a pretty familiar acquaintance with some of these various forms of the same order. We shall feel grieved, in such a case. We have the "oath" from an authority which cannot be gainsayed, and by the same authority, we can convict several of the candidates on the Copperhead State ticket and the Multnomah county ticket of having "seen Jones" inside of the "Old Guard." And to our proof they can hardly say "Ney" In "a reasonable time" we shall give them a "ding in the ear," and see whether they recognize the "grip."

The Civil Rights bill was so amended before its passage as to provide that nothing in the bill shall be construed to interfere with the regulation of suffrage in any State by the Legislature thereof This relieves the measure from the charge of giving the freedmen the ballot or trespassing upon reserved State rights in this respect.

Having placed yourself in the attitude of an alien enemy to the United States, you cannot exercise rights and privileges not accorded to aliens who are not enemies. Not having a right to vote, you cannot hold office No Republic could live long if its acknowledged enemies could participate in its administration."

Maryland Politics.

Gov Swann, of Maryland, publishes a letter called out by the recent split in the Union Executive Committee, saying: I shall advise my friends to adhere to the regular organization of the Union party, and shall await the action of the recognized State Central Committee under the call now pending, and the convention if the people which should come together under that call It may be, however, that I should be more explicit I am for keeping the control of the Government in the hands of loyal men exclusively, now and at all times. I am for the reconstruction of the Union by admitting all the States to representation in Congress, provided they elect men of undoubted loyalty, prepared to take the oath required by that body. The masses of the Southern people I am prepared to pardon, because I believe they have been deceived by ambitious leaders. I am opposed to universal negro suffrage and the extreme radicalism of certain men in Congress and in our midst who have been shrieking to shape the platform of the Union party in the interest of negro suffrage. I consider that the issue upon the subject of negro suffrage will be made in the fall elections, and it will be the most important question that has ever been brought to the attention of the people of Maryland Ex-Gov. Hamford also published a letter briefly declining to have his name used by the committee

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Senate proceedings were unimportant.

Fessenden, of Maine, did not call up the House resolution proposing amendments to the Constitution, but Stewart, of Nevada, gave notice that he would move to amend the first resolution so as to define the word citizens. Without this, he said the construction of both the first and second sections would depend upon the party in power He should also propose to strike out the second section distinguishing rebels, and make the first section of a law which he would offer. As a substitute for the several bills reported by the committee, he would then make the bill excluding rebels from office, the second section of this substitute, and in addition, require each State to commit treason, and authorize by amendments to their Constitution, universal suffrage. While being done by any State, such State should be admitted without waiting for the action of other States

The Senate, in executive session, confirmed Richard Rousseau, of Kentucky, as Minister of Honduras, Edward Maynard, of Tennessee, as Consul at Turks' Island, Morris B Brown, of Indiana, agent of Utah, and a large number of other civil appointments, not including any of those made for political reasons

The War Department orders the dishonorable muster out of Col. H. Heath, Maj. Jos. B. David and other officers of the 7th Iowa Cavalry, lately in service on the plains, for fraudulent practices.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—In the Senate, the Colorado veto message was read and ordered printed, and laid upon the table.

Mr Wilson, of Mass, introduced a bill to fix the military peace establishment of the United States, which was referred to the military committee It provides that the army shall consist of five artillery and six cavalry regiments now in the service, the companies to consist of 64 privates at the minimum, and the men are to be enlisted for five years

In the House, Washburne, of Ills., reported from the committee on commerce a bill to further provide for the safety of the lives of passengers on steamers He stated that it contained a section to prevent the transportation of nitro-glycerine, and also one to modify the construction given to the law in reference to crude petroleum or coal oil. That construction, he said, prevented the shipment of that article, and interfered very much with commerce. The bill was read a third time and passed

Several patent extensions were reported and acted upon, after which the land bill was resumed in the committee of the whole.

PARIS, May 5.—The Memorial Diplomatique denies that France has made energetic remonstrance at Vienna relative to Austrian armaments in Venetia, and says that the dispatch sent to Vienna on the subject requested confidential explanations respecting the object of Austrian preparations. The Austrian government replied, protesting that it would maintain a strictly defensive attitude. France accepted those explanations, and the result was a mutual understanding, according to which Austria under takes, should Italy attack Venetia independent of France, not to secure for herself any of the results of victory with the diplomatic intervention of France It is asserted that the object of Austria in menacing Prussia and Italy is to force England to assent to the convention of a European Congress

AN EXPLANATION.—We feel that we should be doing Col Kelly a great injustice were we to permit a statement to go uncorrected, which was made some weeks ago in this paper, relative to the declarations he made on the subject of repudiation at Oregon City before the Democratic Convention of Clackamas county. Col Kelly asserts that he did not say: "If bonds are not taxed I will never vote to pay a dollar of the interest on the public debt, by G—d," but that he did say, "By G—d, I will never vote to pay a dollar of interest on the public debt, if bonds are not taxed." We gladly give Col. Kelly the benefit of this explanation. It is due to him that the correction should be made, and that the persons at Oregon City who misquoted and misrepresented him, should be rebuked for doing so flagrant a wrong.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.—As this subject of the Northern Pacific Railroad is one in which our people take a deep interest we deem it a pleasure to furnish matters regarding the enterprise for our readers. Minnesota is now asking for 20 per station among the territories, and the Northern Pacific Railroad finds many friends and much assistance within her borders, and where there is so much solicitude for the enterprise it will hardly fail of being fully accomplished. All the Eastern capitalists interested in northern railroads support the enterprise and this places it in a position to be no longer regarded as a thing to be hoped for in the indefinite future. The Montana Post, of late date says of the Northern Pacific Railroad: "The prize to be played for is the carrying trade of nearly half the world and nothing that energy, money and means can accomplish, will be omitted in the endeavor to secure to the Northern route the first chance of inaugurating the new overland commerce. For this purpose the capitalists of Boston, and the other Eastern cities, have united, and the company, under the Presidency of Governor Smith, of Vermont and the Vice Presidency of Governor Frank Fuller, of New York, will commence work, in the Territory, in July next, as ordered by the charter. The names of Forbes, Brooks, the brothers Thayer, Claflin, Lieut. Governor of Massachusetts, and of many reliable financial supporters appear on the roll of promoters. The agent of the association is in Europe negotiating a loan, with every assurance of success. There is splendid land grant to sustain and secure the investors, which cannot be mortgaged or sold until the portions of land sought to be hypothecated are created by the railroad, and everything bids fair for the prosperity of this, the most gigantic and nationally important enterprise of modern times. The work will probably commence at some point on the Missouri and stretching away west, the iron band will pass Montana to Idaho and Oregon while the Eastern connection will run to Sioux City. Vast freight and stage lines will be established at each end within another year we shall see ourselves within a few day's reach of the East and West at all seasons. The great reason for such energetic movement, apart from the natural desire to open the road as soon as possible lies in the fact that the leading men of the company own nearly all the Northern line from Niagara, West and South to St. Joseph Mo., and it is of vital importance to them that the through trade of the continent should not be carried south through St. Louis, but shall run by the shorter, easier and more eligible Northern line. The only way to accomplish this is to outstrip the Central Pacific, and the promoters are of the opinion that this will be easily and certainly accomplished, owing to the diminished distance; the absence of engineering difficulties of construction, and the comparative freedom from deep snow on the line, owing to its much lower level. The survey party will start from a point on the Missouri selected by the Territorial boss of operations, early in May and may well feel thankful that we are entering on the race of competition, an I of ultimate and glorious success under such favorable auspices."

COFFEE AND COFFEE DRINKERS.—H. E. Moring of New York City, the best recognized authority on the subject, has estimated that the whole non-producing world consumes about 300,000 tons of coffee; of which the United States take up 60,000 tons, or 20 per cent. This is 23,000 tons more than France; 30,000 tons more than Austria 45,000 tons more than England, and but 6,000 tons less that all Germany exclusive of the Empire of Austria. We consume coffee at the rate of 4½ pounds per year to every man, woman and child, white, black and red in the United States; England about one pound France about one and a quarter pounds and Austria less than one pound. Of this vast amount of coffee, Brazil furnishes 40 per cent; Ceylon, Java, and South America, the West Indies and Arabia the balance. The famous Mocha Coffee, which comes from Arabia Felix, does not make up one half of one per cent, of the whole production. In our own small city on Wednesday we took a look in at the steam works of Messrs. J. F. Jones & Co., where our coffee and spices are prepared for the use of the public. We have no doubt but that as Mr Jones says, in his advertisement, the public are imposed upon grossly regarding the article of coffee sold in this region of country. There is not a beverage enjoyed by the million so well as a good cup of coffee, and many people are unable to finish a breakfast without coffee. We know that the most inferior grades of coffee are being imported to this State from irresponsible parties, and it is sold to the public, without trial, and the same is the case with regard to spices. In this city we have coffee and spice mills where people can get their orders filled at a moment's notice, and the parties are responsible dealers. The steam works of Messrs Jones & Co., corner of Yamhill and Second streets, are equal to any on the coast.

I. O. O. T.—A grand lodge of Good Templars was fully organized on Wednesday last in this State, at Salem. From one of the fraternity who was in attendance from Portland, we learn that there is over thirty lodges in the city and that twenty-two lodges were represented in the meeting for the organization of the Grand Lodge. Grand Lecturer McDougal, of California, was present at the organization. D. C. Pearson of Salem, was elected Grand Secretary, to whom applications for the institution of new Lodges should be addressed. The annual session of the Lodges of Oregon will be held at Salem in May next. There is at the present time 2,700 members in the State, and the work is progressing everywhere.

THE CITY PLAZA.—The grounds of the city known as the Public Plaza are being finely arranged, and will in a short time be very attractive. The statue of GEN. GRANT—the defender of the Union—which it was recently announced was being purchased by Oregonians in New York, for this city, should be placed in the Plaza. We have not been informed as to whether any movement has been started among our citizens to purchase a similar statue of LINCOLN as recommended by the friends of the city in New York, but presume as soon as the movement could be undertaken understandingly it would prove successful.

PACIFIC MINING JOURNAL OF MINING.—We have received the first number of the above entitled journal, published in New York city, and devoted to the mining and geological interests of the country. George Francis Dawson appears as editor, and having assumed that position buoyed up by the kind assurances of many influential friends, is determined to make it a success. The number before us is well filled, containing editorials of a good class, among which is one on the overland route, a glance at the mining situation, etc. A "mining summary" contains matters of interest from Oregon, Idaho, Montana, British Columbia, Colorado and other sections. "The magnitude of the western mining regions" is also the subject of remark.

LIFE INSURANCE.—W. S. Caldwell, Esq., agent for the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, publishes the card of the Company in another column. We understand Mr. Caldwell has some intention of opening, in this city, an office for general insurance business. Of the Company of which he is at present the agent, we recommend a perusal of the advertisement, which show the benefits to be derived from policies—show the original amount of policy, the dividend additions, and the total amount paid by the company.

POISONING CASES.—Two cases of accidental poisoning have come to our knowledge within a day or two past, but neither of them fortunately had proved fatal at last accounts. One was an accidental taking of poison instead of camphor by Mr John McIlmay. The other a case wherein a lady, residing west of the city, poisoned herself by eating wild flowers.

THE NEW M. E. CHURCH.—We understand the list of subscriptions to the fund for the erection of a new edifice for the Methodist Church in this city, is so far very liberal, and that beyond a doubt the work will be commenced in time to complete a portion of the building the present season.

SUPERINTENDENT.—At a meeting of the teachers of the Presbyterian Sabbath School, held at the Church on Sunday last, Mr. Wm Wallhams was elected to serve the remaining part of the year as Superintendent of the school.

RISE UP.—The Willamette and the Columbia have met, and the latter seems to have the best of it, as usual this season of the year. The Willamette has got its back up—and a fuss in driving business from the lower wharves of this city.

SCHOOL TRIAL.—No. 1 was out last evening and threw three streams at once a distance of 160 feet through 100 feet of hose. There will be another trial on Thursday evening of next week.

FAILED TO ANSWER.—Daniel Miller was held to answer in bonds of $1,000, upon examination before Justice Hoffman yesterday, as a charge of assaulting a chinaman with a deadly weapon.

THE NEW COURT HOUSE.—The work of finishing the new County Court House for Multnomah county, in this city, is progressing rapidly. When completed it will be a most magnificent structure.

PLANING AND CEMENT.—Geo Abernethy, No. 134 Front street, advertises something of interest in this morning's OREGONIAN.

FOR TRIAL TO-DAY.—The examination of Lewis Andrews and Robert Scarborough will take place to-day before Justice Hoffman.

PEDDLING WITHOUT A LICENSE.—James A Daly was arrested yesterday on a charge of peddling meat without a license. He paid a fine and cost upon conviction.

THE STEAMER SIERRA NEVADA sailed for this port yesterday, from San Francisco.

A MERITED PROMOTION.—Our fellow townsman, Quincy A. Brooks, Esq., Special Agent for the Post Office Department, has been promoted to be Special Mail Agent for the Pacific coast. His district will embrace California, Oregon, Washington Territory, Idaho, Nevada and Arizona, with headquarters at San Francisco, and with pay increased to the maximum allowed by law. Mr Brooks is ordered to establish his headquarters in San Francisco by the 30th of June.

The Herald at this late day takes up the defence of the unmitigated and unmilitary humbug, Mr. George B. McClellan. Just like Democrats. The principles they are now advocating before the people of Oregon, are as effectually "burnt out" as the gallant Phil. Kearney said McClellan was in 1862.

DON'T NEGLECT A COLD.—They are the primary cause of nearly all diseases. One tablespoonful of the genuine Hall's Pulmonary Balsam taken at bed time will cure any cold, no matter where located.

Notice.—Couch's Addition O. K.—All persons interested in organizing a Fire Company in Couch's Addition will meet at the Gem Garden on Saturday evening, May 19th at 7½ o'clock. By order

The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. Gray and Blue

"The only difference in your war"
I heard a Britton say
"In that one side is dressed in blue,
The other lad in gray."

I went into a federal camp,
I heard the soldiers cry,
"Hurrah! here comes the newspapers,"
And now them rads is boy

I went along the Valley road
And met upon the way,
Ten of Lee's struggling infantry,
All clad in rebel gray

One held a proclamation out,
And one I stopped my steed
Said "Tell us what this paper says
For none of us can read."

And I replied "If you could read,
And find out what is true
Instead of wearing Davis gray
You'd bear the Lincoln blue."

Gray is the color of the dust
In which the serpent crawls;
And blue the hue of Heaven, which looks,
Down on earth's prison walls

Execution of Thomas Smith

On Thursday of this week Thomas Smith suffered the extreme penalty of the law, in Albany, for the murder of his brother Sidney, and his sister in law, Mrs Hirlburt Smith, near Brownsville in this county, on the 5th of last March. He was executed in pursuance of sentence, after trial and conviction at the last March term of the Circuit Court for Linn county, Judge Boise presiding

Since sentence Smith had been confined in one of the large rooms on the first floor of the Court House, held by the same shackles and heavy chain which were worn by Pate, the murderer who was hung in this place about four years ago. Sheriff Richardson had a person constantly in the room with him, to guard alike against escape or other contingencies During his confinement, Smith was furnished with every suitable discription of reading matter, and permitted the intercourse of visitors and friends, at all reasonable hours. His general demeanor while in prison was similar to the character he displayed on trial—that of a cold, staid, hardened, but unfeeling native man. As the day of sentence drew nigh, he became some what less obdurate, and at times expressed penitence, yet deep sorrow nor a very keen sense of his awful crime never seemed to agitate him He received the visits of those who came to see him with very little concern usually, and was not apparently much impressed with the dread solemnity of his awful situation with reference to the judgment beyond the grave

The day of execution rolled around, and great crowds flocked into town from every portion of the county, and from adjacent counties. The morning was cloudy and cheerless. But the slow and rush of persons—men, women and children—continued from an early hour to the very moment of execution. There were at least 5 000 souls from outside the town, in addition to the residents of Albany present at thisawful final scene.

We visited Smith in his prison room about two hours before he was led away to death. With him were Sheriff Richardson and the Rev. Mr Calloway of the Methodist Church, his spiritual comforter The Sheriff informed him of the attempted suicide of one in Placerville, Idaho, who was stated to be his brother, and read him the account of the affair in the Portland Herald of Wednesday He expressed the belief that it was his brother Calvin, but showed no emotion at the intelligence of that brother's terrible act. We read to him the "Confession," published that morning in pamphlet form by a gentleman of this town, which purported to be from his own lips. He denied ever having made any confession, and was provoked to learn anything he had stated in a confessional way had been made public. He admitted the truth of the material facts in the "Confession," yet wished it to be made known that they were published without his consent. It was only in one or two unimportant matters that he declared the published "Confession" erroneous. The statement given in another place in this paper—except the objected to portions in brackets—is what he admitted to be mainly correct.

At 12 o'clock, noon, Smith was taken from the Court House. He was placed in a hack wagon, with his arms tied behind, and guarded by the Sheriff and deputies. The place of execution was that where Pate had suffered, a short distance east in the extreme western boundary of the town, on an open, level spot beyond the Carvallis road The gallows stood prominent above the mass of human heads crowded about in every direction. The wagon was brought to the foot of the frame, and the Sheriff and his condemned charge alighted Smith betrayed no fear, no weakness, but his nervous system was not so thoroughly braced as it had been during the trial and sentence. He was clad in full black, frock coat, vest and pants, and his boots were scrupulously polished. Before ascending the steps he had called to him Nathan Pates of Brownsville, of whom he asked if the children of his murdered victim were present, and if they had said anything about him lately. He those mounted the steps with apparent ease, and took his allotted place on the platform bench The Sheriff first read a paper written or signed by Smith that morning, in which it was stated that the published "Confession" was not his, and was published without his consent. After this he came to the front of the gallows and said:

"I confess my guilt; I confess doing the deed I am charged with. My sentence was just and I have nothing to say against it. I think I justly deserve my doom. I am pleased with the way I have been treated, by my guard and the citizens who came to see me, especially the officers, the Sheriff and his lady, and other ladies who visited me in prison I have read the Bible since I have been in prison and tried to make my peace with God. I think I will die happy now. I did dread death, and have I suppose, suffered death twenty times since I have been in jail; but I don't fear death to-day. I don't know that I have anything more to say."

Smith returned to his seat after making these remarks. He spoke in quite a low tone and with apparent difficulty, once or twice pausing moments between sentences, as if forgetful of something he wished to say. His fingers quivered as he spoke, but no other display of weakness or nervousness was visible.

At the conclusion of his remarks, the Rev Mr Calloway asked the audience, on behalf of the wretched man, to pray for him. He and Smith then knelt in prayer. This over, Smith signified that he wished to say something more to the crowd, and walking once more to the front rail, spoke as follows:

"One word further. I am charged with having money hid, and where no one knows but myself. I now say as a dying man, [rising to the crowd—"louder!"] that I took no money belonging to Sidney Smith, and any one who don't believe my is a miserably bad man. If I did have any money hid I would tell of it, so the children, who should reap the benefit of it should have it. God knows I have none. I have no further remarks to make."

He then bade the officers and Mr. Calloway farewell, and submitted himself to the last closing terrible ordeal. Seated upon a chair while his feet were tied and the black cap and death noose were adjusted, he prayed in a low tone, but audibly. All but Sheriff Richardson and his deputies and Frank Cooper, who aided in the fatal preparations, left the scaffold. Everything being ready he was requested to stand upon the fatal trap. He gave a last grasp of the hand to the Sheriff, and bidding him "good-bye and God bless you," asked that a last "good-bye and God bless her" he also said to "that good wife" of the Sheriff's. His last words, "God have mercy on my soul" had barely passed his lips when the bolt was drawn and the trap fell. Down a clear, frightful, yet merciful fall, of about seven feet, plunged the living body of Thomas Smith; there to hang suspended until death. His neck was evidently broken at once. The knot, which had been placed under his right ear, had in the drop, slipped to the back of his neck, and thrown his head upon his breast. The death agony was of brief duration and but slightly convulsed his frame—a mere tremor of the legs succeeding for only about half a minute. Drs. Alexander and Cade kept record of his pulse and the beatings of his heart, which we give. At two minutes and a half his pulse beat 40 to the minute, the third minute, 52; fourth, 60, very intermitting; fifth, 100, regular; sixth, 124, regular; seventh, 110, regular, body and limbs from the first minute perfectly motionless, and hands all the time in natural, half-open position, and of natural color; eighth minute, pulse 96, and feeble; ninth, 104, very feeble; tenth, 80, and barely perceptible; eleventh, 64; twelfth, 12, and entirely gone in a few seconds. The heart was then tried, and gave 44 beats to the minute, feeble and irregular, for the thirteenth and fourteenth minutes, and at the fifteenth—from the moment of the drop—the great organ of life had forever ceased. At the ninth minute the hands began to turn purple; at seventeen minutes, life was entirely extinct, and at 20 minutes the hands became cold and livid. After hanging about half an hour, the body was cut down, placed in the coffin ready for its final reception, and conveyed away.

During the whole scene upon the gallows Smith only once betrayed nervousness painfully, and that was for the moment that he stood upon the trap, capped and bound, with the rope about his neck Before the drop he had recovered his usual self possession, and met his fate stoically. He was about 5 feet 7 inches in stature, and though not robust, was of symmetrically compact, wiry, powerful frame. His physical system was very tough, and of exceedingly beautiful cast. He was not a turbulent, demonstrative man, but of quiet, resolute and stealthy nature—one who planned in coolness and performed with systematic caution and terrible will whatever he was bent upon.

During his imprisonment, and to the moment of his death, he never tasted a drop of ardent spirits of any kind. He was not a drunkard; he was simply a desperate, dangerous, cool headed, cold-hearted man. He has gone to answer before the Eternal Judge for his monstrous crime, and is beyond the father judgment of men. His awful fate can only serve as a warning to others of no evil, demoniac spirit, and so all will trust it may forever be.

We are intebted to Sheriff Richardson for courtesies extended to us in furnishing facilities by which we are enabled to place before our readers the above particulars of the execution.—Albany Democrat, May 12th

Utah News.

The Vedette, of May 2d, contains the following items:

THE RUSH TO MONTANA

Everybody is rushing to Montana Next spring we will have as great a rush for Utah The silver is here We know it, because we have seen the assays and the ledges.

THE PARRANAGAT MINES

They are situated in the southwestern corner of Utah, or the southeastern corner of Nevada, about 400 miles from this city, and 123 miles from Callsville Landing, the head of navigation on the Colorado river Fahrnangat Valley is a well-watered, fertile tract, about thirty miles long and one mile wide, and the mining district, which is about seven miles square, is ten miles west, up a gradual ascent, over which a fine road is being constructed for the transportation of ore.

These mines were first discovered in March, 1865, by a party of prospectors from this city, and up to the present time over 250 permanent, reliable ledges have been taken up, in which the crovices average about four feet in width The result of over 250 assays of surface rock give an average result of from $225 to $260 to the ton, and some assays of rock which was nearly pure antimonious sulphurites, go as high as $2,700.

ODD FELLOW'S CELEBRATION

The I. O. O. F. of this city, celebrated the 47th Anniversary of the establishment of the order in the United States by appropriate ceremonies at the hall of their Lodge No. 1, on Thursday evening The hall was crowded by members of the order and invited guests, and after a few introductory remarks by Deputy Grand Sire J. M. Ellis, Capt Geo. E. Price was introduced as the orator of the occasion, who delivered an eloquent and highly interesting address, descriptive of the rise and progress of odd fellowship, its objects and benefits, practical workings We understand that the order in this city is in a flourishing condition and increasing rapidly in membership. Success to all such harmonizing institutions The establishment of odd Fellowship and Free Masonry in Utah is a significant fact They are hand in hand with the pioneers of civilization everywhere

Another Prison-keeper on Trial James H Duncan at the Bar—Horrible treatment of Union Soldiers

Savannah papers which reach us contain the opening proceedings in the trial of James H Duncan before a military Commission The prisoner, who was one of Wirtz's assistants at Andersonville, during 1864, is arraigned on very much the same charges as those for which his superior was tried, convicted and hung He pleads not guilty to the charge of murdering, starving, and in every way maltreating the Union prisoners, there by hastening their progress to the grave. The first witness called testified as f lows

"My name is Charles H Russell, I reside in Appleton, Wisconsin, I am a clerk in a dry goods store I recognize the prisoner, I first saw him at Andersonville, Georgia I think soon after I got there, about May 25, 1864, I can't state the time exactly, I enlisted in the First Wisconsin Cavalry on September 1 1861 I was Orderly Sergeant at the time of my capture, I was captured May 9, 1864, I arrived at Andersonville about May 26, 1864, I am not certain of the exact date, I remained there until September 7th I saw the accused come into the stockade at the south gate, with a wagon, some time in June, I think about the 12th, my detachment was drawing bread and when they handed the bread out of the edge of the wagon a piece of the crust fell on the ground, and another man who was in the detachment with me went to pick it up, the man Duncan then jumped out of the wagon and struck him first and knocked him down, and jumped on him and struck him again after he was down; says he, 'You d—d son of b— b, I'll teach you to run around here stealing bread this man died the third day afterward, he belonged to my detachment and tented at the head of it, and I used to see him every day, in speaking of our condition the day before, I told him I wished my chance for getting through was as good as his his health was a good deal better than mine, and he had two blankets; the man belonged to the First East Tennessee Cavalry, I don't know his name, I saw him after he was dead, in his tent, I saw, too, a half-witted fellow who used to be around camp come to our well for water; he used to be round the wagons to pick up all the pieces of bread he could find, and he came up to the wagon that night, about the 15th of June I think it was, and was standing there, and Duncan jumped out of the wagon and caught a club out of the policeman's hand—we had policemen there—and struck him with it and knocked him down; the fellow got upon his hands and knees, and when he started to run Duncan struck him again; I don't know whether with the club or not; at any rate the man dropped. Duncan says, "I've a great mind to throw you inside the dead line;" I don't know what regiment the man belonged to, or where he belonged, or anything about it; I used to see this man two or three times a day—he came to our well for water; I never saw him afterward; don't think he ever came; he seemed to be very harmless; he was well dressed, and seemed to be getting along pretty well; only he hadn't his wits about him; he minded his own business—was inoffensive; we carried the man from the Tennessee regiment up to his tent after the assault; four of us took hold of him and carried him to his tent, the next day we took him to the Surgeon outside the stockade through the south gate at Surgeon's call; there was no surgeon there, so we brought him back again; the next morning he wouldn't go, and that night he died—some time in the night; I saw him the next morning dead when I went to roll-call' I saw him two or three times a day while he was ill; he complained a good deal about his heart, of injuries received from Duncan; I am satisfied he died from the effects of this kicking and beating inflicted by Duncan; Duncan was sometimes called Commissary in the stockade and sometimes Quartermaster; I never saw him wear any insignia of rank; he didn't always come into the stockade with a wagon, but he was in almost every day; sometimes when I saw him he would be very kind to the boys, then again he would be quite the reverse; I saw him come in one time and going along up the street with some fellows there was a fellow in the way; it was one of our prisoners; he struck him in the face with the flat of his hand and knocked him down and made his nose bleed; I don't know as it injured him any; says he, "You d—d Yankee son of a b—h, keep out of my way," that's all that I can recollect of his beating any of our men that I can call to mind now; there used to be a good many bags of beans, rice, beef and bread, and meal, too, that came in the wagons under the loads. after the loads were issued out, a number of our boys were furnished outside; I saw Duncan come in with the loads that had the bread or rice that would be carried to the camp suttlers; it was the universal belief that Duncan furnished these from the stores provided by the Government for our use; I don't know for certain whether he did or not; at the time of the assault on this man the men used to suffer from hunger very greatly; I did; it was the general complaint; they all did, with the exception of a few that were round the suttlers' stands, that had money; the day before that assault, for not furnishing who man that had died (and our orderly hadn't made a return of him, and our number not being right), we couldn't draw rations; it was the orderly's business of our detachment to make a report, we had no rations that day, and this was the first we were to get on the next day, sometimes there would be men that were sick and couldn't eat their bread; it would get sour, and they would throw it into the marsh; I have seen men go along and pick up that moldy bread and eat it, at this time when we got bread we got a chunk of corn bread about three inches square, I couldn't give a guess at the weight; with that we drew some beans—about a pint, they called them peas there, they were stowed up in the shanks and dirt, and were so dirty that we couldn't eat them without going over them and picking them over to get the dirt out; they were stowed so soft that it was almost impossible to get the dirt away from the beans; they were issued boiled; of pork we drew a piece about an inch square, with no more fat on it than there is in that envelope; sometimes we drew boiled beef instead of it."

The court then adjourned.

State Items.

A magnificent premium—$200—is offered by the State Agricultural Society for the best Band of Music, to be exhibited at the next annual fair.

Among the premiums offered by the State Agricultural Society, as published in the Agriculturist are three for successful competitors in plowing matches, the 1st with oxen, the 2d with horses and the 3d with mules. The first premium in each match is $15, and the second, $10. We invite the attention of our readers to the premiums offered for the best Oregon manufactures. The premium list is published in full, in the Agriculturist of May 1st and of the 16th.

The Agriculturist says Rev. A. C McDougal instituted Salem Lodge No. 30, of members from Capitol Lodge No. 11, on the evening of the 8th inst. Thirty Lodges in Oregon and one in Washington Territory, have sprung up in this Order in less than one year.

A letter from Lafayette dated yesterday, says: "A fire broke out about three o'clock this morning in the building of Dan. Johnson—better known as the Superior saloon—on Main street, Lafayette. Four buildings were burned, Dan Johnson's saloon, Rube Harrison's on the west—a saloon, Harris' butcher shop on the east, kept by S. Bodifeldt, and Sidney Smith's large building, grocery store, kept by Miles Carey. By the aid of the citizens, Mr. Carey saved the contents of the store. The other buildings were a total loss, estimated at about $5,000 The fire is supposed to have been set by some malicious person."

At a regular meeting of Willamette Lodge, No. 15, I. O. O. T., May 5th, 1866, the following officers were installed, for the ensuing term P. Paquet, W. C. T., Miss Ada Loomis, W. R. H. The Reese River Reveille speaking of the late murder of Mr. Brassfield by the Mormons, says that he has now living in Oregon, two brothers and a sister, and a cousin at Dayton The Reveille fully disproves the charges made against him by the Mormons of having been disreputable in some of his family relations

GIVE HIM A CHANCE.—The Shasta Courier, edited by a loyal Irish American, is not afraid of being outstripped by the negroes Hear him If God has given the power to the negro to become the equal of, or superior to the white man, just so sure that superiority will be recognized by all, and in our opinion, he has not far to go to become the equal of those who are so tender footed in refusing equal chance to all in the race The negro has been the "handicapped" long enough Give him an equal chance, "weight for age" and a fair field. We ain't afraid

EMIGRATION OF FREEDMEN.—The Charleston Courier reports that three thousand two hundred freedmen have emigrated from North Carolina during the last three months to Massachusetts, Connecticut and the other New England States, on contracts to work at twenty dollars per month, and that more will follow.

The World says the Federal Constitution has been evisscerated and its vital parts taken out. Probably the slavery clause is meant.

Letter from McMinnville

LAFAYETTE OREGONIAN

We have had quite an exciting time during the past week in this county on the subject of politics. Gov Gibbs and Col. Hawkins addressed large and enthusiastic meetings at Dayton, McMinnville and Lafayette; and on Wednesday went to Amity, where they met the candidates for Governor on their way from Dallas to Lafayette, who stopped to hear the "speaking" Gov Gibbs led off in his usual clear style, making a most excellent speech of one and one-half hour's length Col. Hawkins followed and scathed the modern Democracy as Col Hawkins alone can do it He paid his respects to Col Kelly in particular as a representative of the party who is well and so fervently love the soldier. Kelly at first attempted to laugh it off, and return witty answers, but soon became so much enraged as to entirely lose his self respect, and blurted out, 'you traitor abolitionist" Col Hawkins said "Do you call me a traitor?" No reply Again "Do you call me a traitor?" No reply from Issachar, and Col H., as the boys say, "went after him," repeating as he walked slowly towards him, "Do you call me a traitor?" As soon as the audience saw that Col H. was in earnest and intended to resent the insult there, they rushed in between them. "Our army swore terribly in Flanders," but I will put Kelly against the whole army in that accomplishment. I will only give a short specimen "D—d d—n you, you shan't come here and insult me I'll be G—d d—d if I take it, you G—d d—d pup" Col Hawkins could not reach Kelly, for John Mays and Daniel Holman stood right in the way and refused to stand aside Of course there was quite an excitement for a short time, when Col Hawkins resumed the stand, never, however, giving utterance to a threat or an oath or an epithet of any kind. When Col. Hawkins returned to the stand Kelly said, "Never mind, I'll give him h ll to-morrow, the G d d—d pup." This was all in the presence of ladies, and I thought the Democracy ought to feel proud of their candidate If cursing is a necessary qualification for a Governor, then the Democracy have the man in Col Kelly—and then he is a military hero He caught Pe pu mox mox's cars in the Cayuse war

I attended the speaking to Lafayette the next day, and expected to hear Col H get the h'll he was promised, but Col Hawkins was not at failed to in the most remote manner It is but just to Col Kelly to say that at the close of Col Hawkins' speech at Amity, he took the stand and made an explanation denying that he called Col Hawkins a traitor, and when two or three hundred voices replied, "you did," he said he did not intend it to apply personally, but to the party in the sense that President Johnson applies it to the radical Congress.

Woods made many votes by Kelly's conduct and by his own manly bearing, but did not make a speech. W. L.

DIVISION OF TEXAS.—A proposition has been started to divide the immense State into an East and West Texas The Marshall (Texas) Plaw is in favor of it, and says "The reasons for such division are so obvious that it is scarcely necessary to mention them. That Texas contains too great an extent of territory no one will question. The interests of the east and west also are too dissimilar to be under the same municipal laws or regulations"
